TODAY IS P & C DAY

A day where we publically thank all the hard working members for the tireless work they do to improve education facilities, resources and student outcomes in our schools.

ABSENCE LETTERS

Parents please be aware that it is Education Qld policy to send text messages when your child is not at school for an unexplained reason and to also follow up with an absence letter. If you receive a letter it is because the school has not been advised of an unexplained absence. It is very important that this letter is followed up and returned to school advising of the absence. What does Chappy Jason do at school?
(Part 2)

The role of school chaplain is to provide social, emotional and spiritual support to students, regardless of what particular faith a student has. Chaplaincy is non-coercive, but it recognises the importance of spirituality for young people. Promoting positive spirituality for children and young people is important for their overall development. This is recognised in state education department wellbeing frameworks. Several studies around the world have shown that a school-based resource which focuses on social, emotional and spiritual support, as school chaplaincy does, has positive educational impacts, including significantly improved academic achievement. School chaplains engage around questions of beliefs, values and ethics; help students explore spiritual identity; provide a spiritual/religious perspective on relevant issues; liaise with local Churches and religious groups; and support students and the school community in times of grief and loss when some of the big questions of life arise for them. Chaplains ensure that spirituality is not forgotten as an essential part of people's overall wellbeing. Chaplains are required to be non-judgmental, non-coercive and support all students regardless of the student's issues, beliefs or worldview. Feel free to contact Chappy Jason at anytime for information or assistance.
